

Making Predictions

When we make predictions, we say what we think will happen in the future. We make predictions:

- by looking at present conditions,
- by looking for clues and patterns, and
- by combining our experience and understanding of what has happened in the past.

Directions: Think about what you already know and respond to these situations.

1. The storm began suddenly. The lightning lit up the sky and the thunder roared loudly. The electricity was blinking on and off.

MAKE A PREDICTION:

2. Every Monday after the evening meal, Dad would call the family together so they could counsel and plan together. This was followed by the sharing of a treat. It was Monday evening and Dad had to stay late at work.

MAKE A PREDICTION:

3. Sara and her Mom drove to the computer store. Sara had the money she had been saving for a very long time. She had waited a long time for this day and she was very excited. At last she would be able to look up information and email her friends.
